

Consultant - Procurement Advisory

Do you want to help improve the future of procurement with technology and insight as the driving force?

KPMG is seeking an engaged and detail-oriented consultant for our Sourcing & Procurement consulting area. You will be part of a motivated team that helps some of Denmark's most exciting companies transform their procurement functions.

At KPMG, we help clients redefine procurement through AI, advanced analytics, automation, and sustainable sourcing strategies. We believe the future procurement function will be increasingly data-driven, technology-enabled, and focused on delivering measurable business value. As a consultant, you will help shape that future.

What you will be doing

As a consultant in our team, you will strategically advise clients to optimize their operating model through external suppliers and partnerships. You will be involved in the entire sourcing process, from analysis and strategy to implementation and governance, contributing to impactful projects across both private and public organizations.

Working closely with clients and colleagues, you will help design and deliver solutions that improve procurement performance and support strategic objectives. You will play a key role in translating data and technology into actionable insights while becoming part of an environment where professionalism, innovation, and collaboration go hand in hand.

In practice, that means:

- Contribute to the analysis and development of sourcing strategies and outsourcing models.
- Prepare business cases, supplier analyses, and risk assessments.
- Support the design and implementation of sourcing projects, including transition and governance.
- Facilitate workshops and stakeholder dialogues with clients and suppliers.
- Contribute to proposal writing and business development in sourcing and outsourcing.

- Collaborate with colleagues and experts in KPMG's global network.
- Assess and identify opportunities to leverage AI, automation, and digital technologies across sourcing and procurement processes.
- Support clients in developing future-fit operating models that combine supplier management, technology enablement, and data-driven decision making.
- Apply analytics and emerging AI tools to improve spend transparency, sourcing insights, and procurement performance.

What we are looking for

- Relevant higher education (e.g., Master's in Business Administration, Master's in Engineering, Master's in Political Science).
- 1–3 years of experience in management consulting, preferably in sourcing, outsourcing, or supplier management.
- Experience with analytical tools and sourcing frameworks.
- Solid analytical skills and good business acumen.
- Ability to communicate clearly and professionally – both in writing and verbally.
- Fluent in Danish and English – both spoken and written.
- Experience with analytical tools, procurement technologies, or data-driven sourcing methodologies. Curiosity about emerging technologies such as AI, automation, and advanced analytics and their application within procurement and sourcing.

Why join us?

Procurement is changing rapidly. Organizations are increasingly looking to AI, automation, and digital solutions to improve supplier collaboration, improve decision-making, and create greater value. You will help clients navigate this transformation while building knowledge at the intersection of sourcing, technology, and business strategy.
